

Governor Gavin Newsom's executive order of a statewide "safer at home" lock down has Taken effect across California. This marks a sharp but necessary escalation in California's effort to contain the Corona virus. It is an unprecedented order, one that we take seriously and understand its purpose.

After reviewing the details of this order, it has become clear to us and our hardware association, TrueValue, that the state intends for critical supply chains to remain open and operating. The listed supply chains include those that involve construction materials for public, residential, And Commercial projects. In addition, the federal government recognizes Hardware Stores as an "Essential" business. Knowing this, we made the decision to keep both the Hardware store and the Building supply division open to the public to serve our communities needs.

These are incredibly challenging times. We are doing everything in our power to keep our Employees and customers safe. We look forward to continuing to serve you despite the difficult circumstances.

While we are following the CDC's recommendations for disinfecting and cleaning shared surfaces, vigorous Hand Washing, social distancing, no contact rules.
